HAVE A LOOK

AT OUR SILVER LEVER WATCH at Rs. 35 before buying, and you will give it the preference before any other.

The Watch as it is now, is the result of 20 years experience in the Indian watch trade, and we guarantee it to be the most perfect watch ever offered to the public for such a small outlay.

Being the manufacturers ourselves, the buyer obtains the watch from first hand. This explains its cheapness.

The Watches are of medium size in heavy engine turned silver cases, either hunting or half hunting. Guarantee 3 years.

To be obtained only direct from our firms at Bombay, Calcutta, and Secunderabad.

FACTS
FOR THE INFORMATION OF PURCHASERS OF PIANOS,

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE

TUESDAY EVENING, AUG. 4.

BUSINESS being suspended in England yesterday owing to the August bank holiday, we have no commercial telegrams from London to-day, and there has accordingly been next to nothing doing here.

COTTON is a dead letter at the moment, there being absolutely no inquiry for export. Prices were unchanged in New York yesterday both for ready and forward, and we hear private messages continue to give very favourable accounts of the growing crops.

WHEAT is quiet and decidedly tending easier. We quote Ekdani at Rs. 3-13, No. 1 Club Delhi at Rs. 3-11 per cwt. railway terms. These, however, are sellers' prices, buyers being almost out of the market.

SEEDS generally are inactive, supplies now being limited. Linseed has nominally advanced to Rs. 6-3 bazaar terms, but there is no extent of business doing. For Rapeseed prices are unchanged at Rs. 6-1 for Yellow Guzerat and Rs. 4-15 for Brown Cawnpore.

FREIGHTS are very quiet, but without change in rates, the following being current quotations :—

Liverpool	Ready.	18-9
Continent.....	"	20
Open Charter..	"	20
Havre	"	21-3
Antwerp	"	20-0 to 21-3
Hamburg	"	25-0 to 26-3 at 2
Trieste-Venice.	"	20-0 at 2

COALS.—Sales are reported of a cargo of Davison's West Hartley for August-September shipment at Rs. 15 alongside, but buyers appear to be filled up, and there are no more sellers at the rate.

EXCHANGE.—Calcutta telegrams continue to come steady, and owing to that we keep firm here, an advance of 1-32d. being quoted for private paper. We now quote :—

Bank Bills on demand	Is. 6 13-16d.	per rupee.
Do. Telegraphic	Is 6 28-32d.	"
Do. Three months' sight	Is. 6 25-32d.	"
Credits " "	Is. 6 31-32d.	"
France " "	20f.	"

We are still, owing to the holidays, without anything new respecting silver, but it will be a matter for surprise if the result of the Paris Conference and the approach of the discussion on the Bland Bill in America does not soon begin to unsettle the market. To those interested in the question we would recommend the study of a letter from the Philadelphia correspondent of the Times, which appears in that paper of 17th July. It is too long to quote here at length, but he sums up the existing position as follows :—

> The leading financial organ of New York declares in a recent issue that if relief does not come when the new Congress meets in November next, "further attempts to avoid the calamity which clearly awaits us would be utterly useless." In that event the British mortgage companies, which have been scattering British gold broadcast over the Western and Southern States, will not find it convenient to be paid back by their mortagees in silver dollars, the intrinsic value of which is 82 cents to the dollar. On the other hand, if the energetic opponents of the Bland Act should succeed in putting a stop to the forced coinage of standard dollars at the rate of two millions a month, we shall be escaping a blow on one cheek only to receive what may be a harder one on the other. If our interests in America be spared, our interests in India will be doomed to a new shock. We are in the unfortunate and tantalising dilemma that, whatever Congress may do, it must to a certain extent be to our disadvantage. If the forced coinage of silver under the Bland Act be persisted in, there can be little doubt of its leading to a financial crisis in the States, seriously embarrassing for British investors. If it be abandoned, and the silver which has hitherto been diverted by it into the vaults of the United States Mint be let loose on the market, there must necessarily be a fresh fall in silver, with consequent loss to holders of Indian securities. Whichever horn of the dilemma we are eventually to be impaled upon, we may make up our minds for no small suffering and inconvenience.

GOVERNMENT PAPER to-day has been quiet but very steady, Fours being quoted at Rs. 98½, Fours and-a-half at Rs. 100¼. The political advices are by no means reassuring in tone, but so long as Russia and Afghanistan are not mentioned in a telegram, our speculators attach little importance to it.

SHARES are fairly steady. Some of the Spinning Mills are quoted the turn easier, but other things are firm. In Bombay-Burmah Trading we notice an advance of Rs. 50. Kemp and Co., Ld., are up to Rs. 340. Presses are firm.

The Money Market Review, in an article upon the first meeting of the New Oriental Bank Corporation, says :—It is clear that the new bank, so far from committing itself to any improvident bargain in respect of what it has taken over from the old company, has gained greatly by every agreement that has been made. The result is that the new undertaking is immensely better off than it would have been had it started on an altogether new basis. The rapidity of the new bank's progress is shown by a few figures. Its assets rose from £102,000 at the 30th September last to £742,000 a month afterwards ; to £1,086,000 at the end of November ; to £1,480,000 at the end of December ; to £1,796,000 at the end of January ; to £1,092,000 at the end of February ; and to £2,383,000 at the 31st of March last, when the company's first financial year terminated. And it was mentioned officially at the meeting that since the end of March the business has gone on increasing, if not to the same extent, "certainly by leaps and bounds." "It rather astonished people," says Mr. Cargill, "to find that our business came in upon us with such a volume.'

DUMAYNE—August 3, at Middle Colaba, Amelia Anne, widow of Thomas Dumayne.

The Bombay Gazette

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 5, 1885.

Now again, after an interval of ten years, the German semi-official journal raises the sinister cry that Germany is alarmed at the military strength of France, which is waiting an opportunity to fall upon the Fatherland. When the cry was raised in 1875, the Government of Marshal Macmahon was so convinced of the weakness of the scarcely reconstituted army, that it announced its intention, if the Germans re-entered the country, not to attempt to oppose them in the field, but to retire beyond the Loire, and leave to the European concert the task of bringing the Berlin Cabinet to book for an outrage on public law. This attitude of Christian forbearance would not of itself have made much impression on the robust Chancellor. But the Emperor Alexander II. intervened, and insisted that the integrity and independence of what was left of France should be respected. As there was no doubt whatever that the Czar was determined to support his counsels of peace, by launching his armies against Germany if they were neglected, Prince Bismarck decided to say nothing more of the menacing growth of French strength ; the semi-official papers forgot to write on the theme ; and a little later the Austrian alliance—the "glad tidings of great joy" to Lord Salisbury—was held to guarantee the security of Germany and the European peace against all disturbers. Thus Germany, strong in herself and well-nigh omnipotent with her ally, found that she could afford to forget her ancient grudges against France. The Republic was sustained against England in the Egyptian controversy, and in a colonial policy which furnished a model for that which Bismarck himself has inaugurated. To make Europe sufficiently tranquil, and to prevent even the possibility of its repose being disturbed, Russia was given carte blanche to do whatever she could for herself in Central Asia. This liberality, it was hoped, would not only keep Russia out of mischief in Europe, but probably find employment for England far away on the Afghan frontier. The idea was a luminous one, and no one can yet say that it will not lead to remarkable results.

Just as this wide-reaching policy for the maintenance of peace is developing under our eyes, the semi-official organs of the German Chancellor sound the alarm. France is watching the moment to attack Germany ! If France were to select the present time for such an adventure, when her one possible ally is engaged some thousands of miles away, and there is no reason

THE rain of the [illegible] months has caused considerable [illegible] Marmagoa Railway the running of the [illegible] materials has been suspended.

SIR PETER LUMSDEN has gone to the Aberdeenshire moors, where he has rented some shooting from the Marquis of Huntley.

THE World says that letters from Lord Wolseley, bewailing his detention on the Nile, have lately gone the round of drawing-rooms and boudoirs of London, "far more touching in their plaintive record of hardships endured than any pro ests despatched by Gordon from his beleaguered stronghold."

IT is reported that one of the four master columns upon which the bridge over the river [illegible] is being built has given way. Its [illegible] is estimated to cost forty thousands [illegible] tunnelling work is proceeding very [illegible] complete apparatus has been on the [illegible] since. Only one tunnel has been bored.

THE Bombay shooting-case is the subject of comment in many of the up-country papers. A writer in the Saturday Evening Gazette (Calcutta) remarks: "It strikes me that some very particular inquiry ought to be held in this matter, for it says very little for the pluck of those who gathered round that they did not make some attempt to rush into the building, even if one or two lives had to be sacrificed in the operation. So long as the man kept shooting from the building he was just as likely to kill or wound some one, as he would have been if a simultaneous rush had been made on all sides of the building to capture him. The simple remedy for this state of things is to have ammunition served out only to the men actually going out on duty, and at other times taken from them and kept under charge of a non-commissioned officer, as has been so often suggested. I suppose, however, that a few more valuable lives will have to be sacrificed before the military red-tapeists can be induced to make any alteration in the present orders." The Sind Gazette urges that the true responsibility of these military murders does not rest upon the wretched men who, in a moment of passion, turn the murderous weapon that is always ready to their hands against others or against themselves. "Isolated cases of murders and suicides are not the most serious evils of such blind confidence. A mutiny might be an unjustifiable exaggeration, but there is nothing improbable in a dozen or half-a-dozen men running amuck, and shooting down innocent people right and left. The Multan affair last year is a proof that this is not an improbable contingency. Is it wise to let loose an armed and not very peaceful soldiery among an unarmed, peaceful, and law-abiding people?"

AN "Up-country Merchant," writing to the Economist from Calcutta, complains strongly of a revival, in an aggravated form, of the "scandalous allowances" formerly made by London brokers on Bengal cotton. Shippers, he says, are so alarmed at the incomprehensible allowances that are brought by every mail from Europe, that no doubt they will have to adopt the same system of combination against London that has already been so successfully carried out in Bombay, where shippers three years ago resolved that in all their contracts, both with dealers and spinners, in England and on the Continent, London arbitration should be rigidly excluded. Amongst other cases he cites the following:—A parcel of 100 bales Bengal cotton, selected at Agra under the supervision of a European expert, and sold by him to an exporter as "fully good," and accepted as such after inspection in Calcutta, was shipped to London, 300 bales under a sale of "fully good," and 200 bales under a sale of "good." The parcels were separately arbitrated upon on arrival in London, and ½d allowance awarded on both. It was surely reasonable to presume that if it had represented the inferiority on the standard of "fully good," the same cotton should have passed on the standard of "good"; but no, it was necessary to make an allowance.

THE annual report of the Khandesh experimental farm for the year ending 31st March, 1885, has been published. During the year great attention was devoted to the cultivation of wheat. A trial was given to the Lois Weedon method, which consists in raising a crop year after year on the same land, thorough tillage alone being substituted for manure. The system has been tried with considerable success in some of the English and Welsh counties, and this experiment was undertaken to ascertain how far the practice is suitable to the changed conditions found in this country. To provide against accident duplicate plots were used throughout. The results were fairly satisfactory. A rotation crop was tried on other plots on the farm, so that a comparison could be formed yearly between wheat grown on the Lois Weedon system and that grown in the ordinary rotation. Small experiments were also made with some good varieties of wheat from other parts of the Presidency, and with some of the best kinds of English wheat. These were not so successful as those made with the local wheats. An experiment with Australian wheat was fairly successful. The past year being a very bad one for cotton, the crop was a very moderate one. From a comparison between the returns of a previous good season and the last bad season, it appears that the yield in the former was 4½ as much as that in the last season. When it is considered how helplessly the cultivator has his mainstay in the cotton crop, his alternate condition of fair credit and complete bankruptcy can easily be understood. An important experiment with a sugarcane crop proved that the complaints about the sterilising effects of such a crop have no foundation in truth. On the contrary, it was established that the unexhausted manure left the ground enriched for several successive crops. A similar report of the experimental farm in Sind deals largely with the cultivation of cotton, wheat, and tobacco. The experiments seem to be conducted on a slightly larger scale and with better results.

MR RUSKIN, having been questioned by a correspondent as to his views on the responsibility of fathers to provide for their offspring, has replied as follows:—My dear Sir,—I am much interested in your letter. In the strongest conviction I would assert that the father should never provide for his children. He should educate and maintain them to the very best of his power till they are of mature age, never living upon them in their youth (damned modernism eats its own children young, and excuses its own avarice by them when they are old!) When they are strong enough throw them out of the nest as the bird does. But let the nest be always open to them. No guilt should ever stand between child and parent. Door always open to daughter-harlot or son-thief, if they come. But no fortune left to them. Father's house open; nothing more. Honourable children will have their own houses—if needs be provide for their parents, not their parents for them.

THE World, in a forecast of the coming struggle of parties, says that the Liberals do not deny that they would sustain a defeat at the hands of the constituencies constituted as to-day they are. Their confidence and their salvation lie on the hedgers and ditchers of the counties. In other words, they trust to the skilful manipulation of between five and six hundred thousand tillers of the field to send them back to office. If the agricultural labourer does not do his duty, if it should prove that he has imbibed the prejudices or taken on the political colour of those who have the suffrage already, then the confident anticipations of a Liberal triumph will dwindle, even with the most fervent of the faithful, to a vanishing point.

NUMEROUS great fires are reported from various parts of Russia. In the suburb of Warsaw called Nespraga thirty houses have been reduced to ashes and over four hundred families left without home or shelter. Besides the great loss of property, three persons are missing, and it is feared they have perished in the flames. While the fire was raging in Warsaw, the old part of Kursk, a place of 32,000 inhabitants, was also in flames. The temperature of late has been excessive, having reached over 100 deg. Fahr. in the shade. Hence, everything being as dry as tinder, the fire, within half-an-hour of its breaking out, had destroyed over a hundred houses. Most of them stood in the long Obojanski-street, where the fire was still raging when the news was despatched. The fire-brigades from Orel and Charkow soon arrived; but it was beyond human power to check the progress of the flames. The town of Kursk has numerous tobacco, soap, and tanning factories, in addition to distilleries; the last of which may help to account for the great extent of the fire.

IT appears that when Ollivier Pain was knocking about in the Soudan, Gordon imagined he was Renan. The latter recently spoke of Gordon, and when Truth thought he was going to place him above all Plutarch's heroes he made him out a lunatic, of a strange and indeed unique kind. Renan thinks that nothing is so terribly dangerous as a religious notion taking hold of a strong, uncultivated, and narrow brain. "What explosions," he says, "did not Christianity lead to in Africa in the early centuries of its existence? The Mahdi, or 'Gordon,' is continued," and the tropical Mahdi were by force of religion brought upon the same plane, and into collision. But as the African prophet was the more consistently fanatical, and was carried on by a great wave of fanaticism, he was the victor. Gordon was born two hundred and fifty years too late. At the head of a Puritan Revolution, and with Ironsides behind him, he would have carried all before him in Europe."

CONSIDERABLE excitement was caused in Oxford-street, Regent-street, and the neighbourhood about eleven o'clock on a recent Saturday morning by the appearance of a man with a swarm of bees on his back and hundreds more flying around his head. An enormous crowd collected—men, women, and children following, though at a safe distance. The vehicular traffic was entirely stopped for a time. It appeared that the man was in the service of Messrs. Mappin and Webb, and had been ordered to take a swarm of bees enclosed in a basket to a railway station, for conveyance into the country. While placing the basket in a van the bees got loose, and the queen, followed by her little army, swarmed on the man's back. Hundreds settled on his hat, and many more hovered round and above him. Not knowing what to do, the man ran off; but the bees clung to him and followed him everywhere. Being unable to get rid of them, he rushed amongst the omnibuses and cabs, thinking that the noise of the traffic would drive them away. In Oxford Market, the man was advised to take off his coat, and he did so in the presence of thousands of persons who had formed a ring round him. After he had taken off his coat the bees rose in a cloud, and the man instantly took to his heels, and so did the crowd, who ran away from the spot with all possible speed.

J. M. M. writes:—The Pall Mall's revelations regarding criminal immorality in London are now generally understood to have been prepared from evidence collected by the chiefs of the Salvation Army, and by a Mr. Charrington, who has appeared several times in the police court charged with annoying the frequenters of a music hall in the East-end by distributing tracts among them and warning them in a loud voice that they were on the downward road to hell. The agitation has been unexpectedly successful in attracting the attention of the Queen, to whom Mrs. Booth, the wife of the General, wrote in the name of "the Innocents" of London, and who replied saying she had already called the attention of her Government to the subject. It is, of course, right that the accuracy of the statements made by the Pall Mall should be investigated; but one may reasonably doubt if a tribunal consisting of Cardinal Manning, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, and Mr. S. Morley, is qualified without legal advice to determine how much truth there is in the tales told by interesting penitents who are the victims of a religious mania, or by hardened reprobates who have duped the editor of the Pall Mall and his enthusiastic coadjutors. In any case, it is clear that, whether the stories themselves were true or false, the Pall Mall had no right to relate them in brutally indecent language. The editor, Mr. Stead, is naturally anxious to disguise what is the real charge made against him. He affects the martyr, whereas there is really much more of the bully in his composition, or he would not have had recourse to the cowardly trick of dragging in the Prince of Wales's name, and threatening to call His Royal Highness into the witness-box if he were prosecuted. This is a decided aggravation of his first offence, for the Prince can have had nothing whatever to do with the abominations described in the Pall Mall: and I think that, on this account alone, the Government should have prosecuted the paper. But Sir Richard Cross is a timid man, and dared not offend the apostles of morality who have championed the Pall Mall's cause. I am told that Mr. John Bright had the good sense and moral courage to refuse to give the editor a certificate that he had acted rightly in the public interest in making his disclosures.

MRS. GEORGINA WELDON has addressed a most pathetic appeal to the Standard from the Holloway Gaol. It appears that these "northern latitudes," as Mr. Edmund Yates termed the neighbourhood, had been tremendously excited over the appearance of a stray cockatoo in the streets. This "poor dear white bird with golden crest," as Mrs. Weldon describes it, perched itself on the steeple of the church opposite the window of her cell, its chain became entangled with the cross ornaments, and it remained a prisoner on the summit of the building. Mrs. Weldon urged the formation of a cockatoo rescue fund. Here is her scheme:—

Surely, if ladders long and strong enough were procured, a sailor might run up and release the bird; or, if necessary, a scaffolding might be erected at a considerable cost—perhaps fifty pounds or one hundred pounds, I know not how much. Not only would it answer the purpose of any advertising firm to do it, but the money would easily return to the pockets of the lenders or donors by showing the cockatoo seated on the steeple of the New Jerusalem Church at the Zoological Gardens for a week or a month. Cockatoos and parrots are very hardy birds. In an hour or so after this letter has appeared to-morrow the scaffold would be up and the bird saved, at all events before nightfall. I will risk undertaking to guarantee fifty pounds towards the cost, feeling sure the public will come forward, and I will give one guinea unconditionally towards the venture. I am sure, sir, if you will raise a subscription, the money will come in. Poor little fellow! There he is, in front of my eyes, doomed, if he is not rescued, to die of hunger and thirst, and then to hang a corpse before my eyes (for I have nothing else to look at) till all the feathers fall off—oh it is horrible! Do, pray, I beg of you, help me in my efforts to save him. Thousands, I am told, were watching him last night, and thousands will be watching him to-day. Every one, I am sure, would gladly contribute to save, not only the bird, but me from being the forced, melancholy, and helpless spectator of his miserable end. Imagine what it will be when he is too weak to stand. There must be some hope of saving him, or he would have been shot before now. To send up a captive balloon! That would be a very easy matter.

Yet the parrot is not in a much worse plight than Mrs. Weldon. It is not more helplessly fixed upon the steeple than she is "fixed" in her cell. The least that a parrot for whose rescue Mrs. Weldon had got up a fund could do would be to start a fund for the rescue of Mrs. Weldon. No parrot with proper feelings—and of course the means to give expression to them—would refuse to subscribe to such a fund.

A RELIC OF THE MAZAGON DOCKYARD SUIT OF 1834.

THE following is a copy of an important judgment recently delivered in the case Charles Agnew Turner and Hajee Bessee, widow, and others for Sir Charles Sargent, Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Pinhey, sitting on the Appellate side of the High Court. The plaintiff and appellant, as the assignee of the estate and effects of Aga Mahomed Rahim Suirazee, an insolvent, sought to recover from the defendants and respondents, as the heirs and legal representatives of Hajee Bessee, widow, and others for the sum of Rs. 1,50,000, with interest at 9 per cent. per annum from the 25th of August, 1875, till payment. Mr. Lang and Mr. Inverarity, instructed by Messrs. Jefferson, Bhalshunker, and Dhubhai, appeared for the plaintiff and appellant; and Mr. Macpherson and Mr. Jardine, instructed by Messrs. Craigie, Lynch, and Owen, for the defendants and respondents.

The Chief Justice said.—This suit arises out of litigation dating as far back as 1834, between two Persian families who, for convenience sake, may be described as those of the Shoostry and the Suirazee families. A merchant-prince of the Shoostry family, one Mahomed Ali Kuan, who died in Bombay about 1822, left a realisation estate of the value of Rs. 30,00,000, appointed in his stead one Mahomed Rahim Suirazee. A suit which had been brought by the Shoostry family against the original executor for an account was revived in 1834 against Mahomed Rahim Suirazee; and in 1846 the Master in Equity, by his report, found Mahomed Rahim Suirazee liable to the estate for over eleven lakhs of rupees. This report was confirmed by the Supreme Court, and a decree made on it in favour of the Shoostry family. Mahomed Rahim Suirazee to pay the said amount. On appeal, however, to the Privy Council, the committee in 1857 ordered the accounts to be retaken. But in the meantime the matter had been discussed against Mahomed Rahim Suirazee, who had in consequence become insolvent and filed his schedule in 1850. On leaving Bombay, which he was allowed to do after suffering imprisonment, he appointed one Zenail Abadeen, also a merchant of Bombay, as his representative with a power of attorney, which on his death in Persia in 1856 was renewed by his children. Zenail Abadeen, finding that the Shoostry suit was of a character urged the Official Assignee to file a suit against the representatives of the Shoostry family, to have the accounts retaken in accordance with the decree of the Privy Council. This was accordingly made on the 24th February, 1859, that suit was referred to the Master in Equity for the purpose of taking the accounts, and the Official Assignee was appointed receiver of certain immovable property. Bombay known as the Bazaar Mazagon Dockyard, which had originally belonged to the Suirazee family. The taking of these accounts, owing to their being in the Persian language, and to the parties residing in Persia, transactions for the most part dead, was attended with great difficulty; so much so that by 1870 only one twenty-fifth part of the accounts had been investigated. In the year the presence of Sir Salar Jung, who was an uncle of the Shirazee family in Bombay, presented a favourable opportunity for a settlement of the Shirazee claims. Negotiations were already carried on before Sir Salar Jung by Zenail Abadeen, acting for the Shirazee family, and Mr. Keir, who was their solicitor in the suit for the Shoostry family. The result of those negotiations was a compromise by which the defendants in the suit, the Shoostry family, were to pay in settlement of all claims whatsoever of the Shirazee family, out of the fund in court, the sum of Rs. 2,25,000. Out of this sum the Official Assignee was to be paid, and the balance was to go to the family of Aga Mahomed Ali, who had died in 1822, and whose property in litigation handed over and conveyed to the Shoostry family. Mr. Keir subsequently agreed with Mr. Gamoie, who was then the Official Assignee, that, as the Official Assignee's part of the claim was not a creditor of the insolvent's estate, but in charge of his claims, and Rs. 10,000 in lieu of his commission. This compromise, however, was not carried out, as it would appear, owing to Mr. Keir's reluctance at the time, contrary to my opinion as counsel, to hand over the balance to Zenail Abadeen, and subsequently owing to the institution of two suits in 1871. In the first one Ali Akbar (whose name was not at that time on the list of scheduled creditors) claimed to be a creditor of the insolvent's estate for Rs. 55,000, and sought to prevent the above compromise from being carried out, and the other by one Mahomed Tuckee to establish a large claim against the Shoostry property. Both these suits had been disposed of by the end of 1874, the former having been dismissed on appeal in January of that year and the latter disposed of in August by Abdool Kauff, the adult defendant, agreeing to pay Mahomed Tuckee Rs. 1,50,000. During these things, at the close of 1874 negotiations were revived by Mr. Prescott (a member of the firm of Keir, Prescot, and Winter), who had succeeded Mr. Keir on the latter's departure for England. These negotiations led to the original compromise of 1874 being carried into effect in 1875. Rs. 75,000 (made up of Rs. 50,000 paid into court by the defendants and Rs. 10,000 for Mr. Gamble's commission) were paid to Mr. Gamble, the suit was dismissed, and the balance of Rs. 1,50,000 was paid to Zenail Abadeen as representing the Shirazee family. The present suit was brought by the Official Assignee of the insolvent estate of the late Aga Mahomed Rahim Suirazee to recover the above sum of Rs. 1,50,000 from the representatives of the late Zenail Abadeen on the following grounds. (1) That Zenail Abadeen compromised the suit as the agent and confidential adviser of the Official Assignee, and (2) that the payment to Zenail Abadeen was fraudulently concealed by Zenail Abadeen and his sons from the court, and also from Mr. Gamble before and after the passing of the consent decree; but that even if Mr. Gamble was aware of the Rs. 1,50,000 being paid to the said Zenail Abadeen, the said payment was a fraud upon the court and the creditors, which Mr. Gamble had no power to consent to, so that such consent could not be binding on his successor. The learned judge in the Division Court held that Zenail Abadeen's conduct at no time investing him with a fiduciary character (especially not so after 1,870) either towards Mr. Gamble or the creditors, being, as he held, an outsider and not a party to the suit, and that he was entitled to make any terms he could with Abdool Kauff without the consent of the court, and accordingly dismissed the plaint. Now, it is not in dispute that the suit which was originally instituted in 1838 in the name of Mr. Ketterer, the then Official Assignee of the Insolvent Court, originated with Zenail Abadeen; that he set Mr. Ketterer in motion by giving him an indemnity for his costs, and according to the evidence of Pandurang, chief clerk to Messrs. Acland, Prentis, and Bishop, brought the suit to that firm. It further appears from Zenail Abadeen's own affidavit of the 20th of March, 1861, that his connexion with the suit was as the agent of the Shirazee family, whilst admitting that he had a personal interest in it as a means of recouping himself the advances alleged by him to have been made to Messrs. Acland, Prentis, and Bishop to prosecute the appeal to the Privy Council, such bill of costs being of Messrs. Acland, Prentis, and Bishop, who throughout the suit acted as solicitors for the several Official Assignees who succeeded one another as plaintiffs in the record, as well as the evidence of Mr. Prentis, who managed the suit, shows that the prosecution of the suit was left almost entirely by the Official Assignees to Zenail Abadeen, and that he was regarded by the solicitors as the agent of the Official Assignee, upon whose instructions they were entitled to act, and in fact did so up to 1870, after which period nothing further was done in the suit beyond carrying out the compromise. The fact that the document is in Persian, and required special knowledge, necessarily threw the active conduct of the suit into Zenail Abadeen's hands; so much so that we find Mr. Prentis saying that Zenail Abadeen was regarded as the real plaintiff by the defendants. Under these circumstances it can scarcely, we think, be doubted that Zenail Abadeen occupied a fiduciary position towards Mr. Gamble, even if he cannot be regarded strictly as his agent, as he would appear to have been by Mr. Gamble's solicitors—a position which demanded from him perfect good-faith in the conduct of the suit, including the compromise of it, and entirely prohibited his deriving any advantage from it for the Shirazee family as distinct from the creditors, behind the back of Mr. Gamble. As, however, it was not disputed that under Mr. Prescot gave his evidence, it must be taken as a fact in the case that whatever may have been the extent of Mr. Gamble's knowledge in 1870 and 1875, Mr. Gamble was acquainted with the intention that Zenail Abadeen should receive Rs. 1,50,000 from the Shoostry family, and that he assented to it the transaction, so far as the question turns upon the fiduciary relationship between Mr. Gamble himself and Zenail Abadeen, can only be impeached on the ground that Mr. Gamble's consent was obtained under circumstances amounting to fraud. The question for decision, however, does not, in our opinion, rest exclusively on the fiduciary relationship between Mr. Gamble and Zenail Abadeen, but also on the large principle that an insolvent (and such was virtually the case here, Zenail Abadeen having on his own admission acted as agent for the insolvent, family although possibly with a view to his own interest) who has set the Official Assignee in motion with a view to enforcing a claim against a debtor to the insolvent estate and has taken an active part in the prosecution and compromise of the suit instituted for the above purpose in the name of the Official Assignee, cannot derive any benefit from such suit, except on the condition of acting in perfect good-faith to the creditors. His deriving any benefit from the suit, except on that condition, would, in our opinion, be a fraud on the creditors and on the court itself, and a Court of Equity would properly regard him as holding any such benefit as a trustee for the insolvent estate. Now, as to what occurred in 1870, the memoranda of Mr. Keir (exhibits 12, 13, and 15) and his instructions to Mr. Latham (exhibit 30) afford a most reliable account, as coming from a neutral party of the highest respectability and integrity, and written at a time when there was no dispute arising out of the negotiations before Sir Salar Jung, and they show that Mr. Gamble and his solicitors took no part in that negotiation, which was solely conducted by Zenail Abadeen acting for the Shirazee family and Mr. Keir for the Shoostry family, possibly assisted by Abdool Latiff himself, and that it related exclusively to the compromise of the Shirazee claims which were the subject of the suit, for no others have been suggested, and left the question as to what was to be paid out of the Rs. 2,25,000, at which those claims were compromised to Mr. Gamble as representing the creditors, to be settled with Mr. Gamble himself. It has been contended for the defendants that this compromise of the claims at Rs. 2,25,000 was conditional on an understanding being come to between Mr. Gamble and Zenail Abadeen, or at any rate on Zenail Abadeen being satisfied. There is nothing in Mr. Keir's memoranda, or in his instructions to Mr. Latham, to lead to this conclusion, and it is on the face of it improbable, as the Shoostry family were naturally indifferent as to who got the Rs. 2,25,000, and were under no obligation whatever, but rather the reverse, to Zenail Abadeen. Passing to the revival of the negotiations in 1875 by Mr. Prescot, who then occupied the same position as Mr. Keir had filled in 1870, Mr. Prescot's account is that some months before the consent decree was passed in 1875 he had an interview with Mr. Gamble on the subject of compromising the suit on the terms originally proposed in 1870, and that he told him in a letter of the 15th of January, 1875, that Abdool Latiff had promised to pay Zenail Abadeen Rs. 1,50,000, in addition to the money to be paid to him, and that they would be paid out of the moneys in the hands of the Accountant-General after being paid over to his firm, and that on Mr. Gamble saying, "Then I ought to have some more," he said he "would not agree to it." This interview, according to Mr. Prescot, had been preceded by one between him and Zenail Abadeen, in which Zenail Abadeen "insisted" on his being reimbursed for all the advances he had made to carry on the appeal before the Privy Council, saying that Sir Salar Jung had "promised him," and that he showed him a letter from Mr. Keir, which we may presume was the letter of the 7th March, 1870 (exhibit No. 10), in which that gentleman communicated to Zenail Abadeen in detail the arrangement came to, and which, it is convenient to remark here, distinctly shows that the Shirazee claims had been compromised at Rs. 2,25,000 quite irrespective of Zenail Abadeen's character for honesty (especially not so after 1,870) either towards Mr. Gamble or the creditors, being, as he held, an outsider and not a party to the suit, and that he was entitled to make any terms he could with Abdool Latiff without the consent of the court, and accordingly dismissed the plaint. Now, it is not in dispute that the suit which was originally instituted in 1838 in the name of Mr. Ketterer, the then Official Assignee of the Insolvent Court, originated with Zenail Abadeen; that he set Mr. Ketterer in motion by giving him an indemnity for his costs, and according to the evidence of Pandurang, chief clerk to Messrs. THE FAILURE OF THE MUNSTER BANK.

THE Munster Bank (Limited), as reported by Reuter, suspended payment on Tuesday, July 14. The Dublin correspondent of the Standard telegraphed the same evening:—The Bank did a splendid business, especially amongst the rich farming community of the south of Ireland. Its Head Office was in Cork, but it had a Central Office in Dublin, and numerous branches throughout the country. Last year rumours got into circulation to the effect that the then Chairman, Mr. William Shaw, M. P., and several other Directors had considerably overdrawn their own accounts, and that this practice had been going on for some time. The shareholders in Dublin held a meeting, Mr. Shaw had to retire from the chairmanship, and a suit was instituted by Sir William Jackson, Mr. Fitzgerald, and other shareholders, praying that the Directors might one and all be made answerable for any deficiency in the securities in hand for large sums given in overdrafts to Directors. It was alleged that Mr. Shaw was indebted to the extent of 80,000*l.*, but this he denied, stating that his securities were ample, but having been brought into law, no statement was ever made as to what did or did not reach Cork until the evening, prevented the effect being fully realised until Wednesday morning. The excitement after half-past nine became intense. Directors were besieged and refused to give information respecting their accounts, but all were informed that though the Bank was practically closed, it was hoped that the full amount of the money due to depositors would be ultimately realised. Many large firms who had credit balances in the Bank are placed in a state of great pecuniary inconvenience, for their working capital is, for the moment, taken from them, and they are thrown back upon other resources. One trade alone had 100,000*l.* deposited in the Bank, and all his earnings were deposited. A firm of contractors who were paid a large sum within the last week on account of contracts lodged the amount with the Bank. They now temporarily cut off from the use of it. Many incidents are related of escapes by the transfer of accounts at the last moment. Crowds of people assembled in the South-mall, discussing the matter queerly. There was a feeling akin to consternation, complete absence of excitement. Reports from the country branches tell a similar story. In Limerick the police had to be brought to prevent an excitable crowd from breaking into the Bank.

Reports of the excitement caused by the failure of the Munster Bank have been received from many districts in Ireland. The shareholders number three thousand two hundred, whom one-half belong to Munster and the other half to Leinster. Several prominent shareholders hope for the interference and assistance of the Government; and the Mayor of Cork, a large shareholder, has telegraphed for the opinion of Parnell. A meeting of shareholders will be at once held to consider the matter. In the meantime other banks are accommodating the customers of the latest failure. The business of the fairs throughout the south of Ireland has been paralysed by the failure of the Bank. The Cork Corporation had ten thousand pounds in the Munster Bank. The rate collectors have been authorised to receive thereafter collecting outstanding rates to meet the deficiency.

A large meeting of proprietors of the Munster bank on Thursday appointed a committee to consider the best means for reconstructing the bank and facilitating the liquidation of the present concern.

THE RE-INSTATEMENT OF HOBART PACHA.

IN the House of Commons Mr. Shaw Lefevre on July 31st, at the request of Lord Northbrook, explained the circumstances under which Hobart Pacha had been restored to the British Navy. He stated that when the Russo-Turkish War broke out in 1877 Hobart Pacha was told that he must either sever his connexion with the Turkish service or lose his position in the British Navy. He elected to remain in the service of the Porte, and was, therefore, struck off the Navy List. In May this year he applied for reinstatement, and Lord Northbrook consulted Lord Granville, who, after careful consideration, came to the conclusion that there were strong reasons of an Imperial nature for restoring Hobart Pacha to the British Navy. It would be obvious that at the time when they were making preparations for the possible outbreak of war with Russia it was not unimportant that the Government should be in a position to command the information which Hobart Pacha might give them (cries of "Oh, oh"). For these reasons the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs advised that it was desirable to reinstate Hobart Pacha in the British Navy, and accordingly he was placed in the same position that he would have been had he not been removed in 1874. His reinstatement had no reference to the original offence, if it was an offence, which Hobart Pacha had committed, and it had only reference to the desirability for Imperial reasons for reinstatement of that officer. There were several previous cases of reinstatement of officers who had been removed for entering foreign service. There were Sir George Sartorius, Sir C. Napier, and Lieutenant South. For his own part, though he was not favourable to the views which Hobart Pacha had put before the Government in regard to the acts of Liberal Ministers, he still thought that the reinstatement of this officer could be justified on the grounds of precedent, on the ground of the arrangement made with him in 1877, and on the grounds of Imperial policy. A discussion ensued in which Mr. Bryce declared there had hardly ever been a weaker case put forward for an Executive act. Others below the Opposition gangway, it seemed to him, had Hobart Pacha was exceedingly fortunate that he was not undergoing two years' hard labour for a breach of the Neutrality Laws. As it was he was reinstated in the service of the Crown, and it seemed that the Government held laws, solemnly passed, of very little account, and they had meddled on the taxpayers of this country a charge of 300*l.* a year for a man who had committed flagrant breaches of naval discipline.

THE ETON AND HARROW MATCH.

FROM all accounts the public schools match of 1885 deserves to be marked with an entire alphabet of red letters and a complete quarry of white stones. In the first place, the weather was gloriously fine throughout, whilst the attendance of spectators was very large, 35,000 persons witnessing the play on the two days. The total—324—scored by the Harrovians in their first innings was the largest ever compiled in the match since its commencement, whilst the partnership between Crawley and Watson, which realised 235 runs between the fall of the first and second wickets, also stands out as a best on record in connection with this fixture. To this must be added a most exciting finish, and, in the end, a very popular victory for the Dark Blues by three wickets. On the opening day four hundred and eighty-four runs were scored in about six and three-quarter hours batting for the loss of only eleven wickets, an average of over 71 runs per hour—and 44 runs per wicket. This remarkable achiev

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

Drs. Engler and Jansz are, by the exercise of their peculiar skill, doing a great deal of good in Bangalore. We have paid a casual visit to Dr. Engler's surgery to see for ourselves what is being done in the way of cures. Of course we speak unprofessionally, but we do not know that professional knowledge is required to judge as to results when seeing and hearing of patients themselves are freely allowed. Three cases of blindness, two nearly total, and one total in one eye, were, according to the testimony of the sufferers themselves, progressing with wonderful favourableness. One in which inflammation and granulation of the inner surface of the eyelids had lasted for months, and had caused ulceration of the eye-ball, was almost cured after about a fortnight's treatment, although previous treatment had failed to give relief. In another case, where both eyes were seriously affected the patient was considerably better, and in the one in which the sight of one eye had been lost, it was restored, and though not completely recovered, was on a fair way towards it. This patient freely and without effort read from a newspaper with the injured eye, though no sight whatever was in it a few days previous. In cases of deafness Dr. Engler seems even more certain of success than in blindness. One little girl, who had been deaf for years, was restored so far as to be able to hold a conversation in ordinary tones; she heard the softest spoken words and answered to them, and heard the ticking of a watch held from four to six inches from her ears. Two soldiers belonging to the garrison, suffering from deafness, have been cured; one, a man who had been in hospital for weeks and been blistered and put to great pain by ordinary treatment, perfectly recovered his hearing in twenty-four hours.

We are quite aware that any detailed notice of such cures as these are apt to be looked at askance by the general public. But this, we fancy, is the result of the infrequency of such notices. Why men who benefit the suffering members of the public, as Drs. Engler and Jansz are undoubtedly doing, should receive no attention from the press, when whole columns are given up to descriptions of the tricks of some travelling juggler, it would be, perhaps, hard to explain. It is a fact, however, that, while the public naturally has to pay for both, the one who goes most good is the least noticed.—Bangalore Spectator, Dec. 1883.
